THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY VISIT THE WHITE HOUSE.

SECOND DAYS' SESSION. Report of the Committee Regarding Theological Seminaries.

The Judiciary Committee Made Up Largely of Conservative or Anti-Biggs Men, with Rev. Dr. Baker as Chairman.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The second day's session of the Presbyterian general assembly opened with devotional exercises. Dr. Harsha, of Nebraska, moved the appointment of a committee to formulate an expression of opinion on the Chinese excommunication, as it affects foreign missionary work. Adopted.

Rev. Dr. Duncan, of the Episcopal church was introduced. He is a member of the joint committee on church unity, and said the committee had been in session two days. There were four points the Episcopal church deemed essential to assist the union. On three of these they had practically agreed, and the fourth involved large differences in terms. He prophesied, therefore, unity in the not distant future.

After the routine business was disposed of, ex-Moderator Young projected into the proceedings, the first of the important questions before the assembly, the report of the committee upon the relation of the assembly and theological seminaries.

The committee says it was evidenced at the time of the information of the First Theological seminary of the Presbyterian church that it was the purpose of the church to maintain the same under completely control by its general assembly and the teachings and property of its theological seminaries. As the church grew in numbers with the growth of the country, other seminaries were formed, some of them on substantially the same plan as Princeton. The seminaries organized substantially under this plan were Princeton, Western, McCormick, Louisville and Omaha. Other seminaries organized under different plans and became connected with the church. Union and Lane are typical of two classes; Auburn and San Francisco the other classes.

While Union and Lane are regarded as seminaries in connection with the Presbyterian church, the church has no control of any kind over the teaching or property of these seminaries, and can afford to donors of funds to them no protection in the matter of applying their gifts to the purposes for which they were made. Auburn is controlled by certain presbyteries and San Francisco by certain synods. The committee believes a way might be found to dispense with his services without splitting up the church. [Applause.] The report was approved and the committee continued.

Rev. Charles A. Dickey, chairman of the special committee of judicial commissions, reported in favor of sending overtures to the governing authorities, in chapter 13, section 118, so as to provide that the general assembly of each synod and presbytery shall have power to appoint judicial commissions, and that such bodies in numbers not less than twelve from any synod and seven from any presbytery, all judicial cases to be submitted to them for their decision, and their decisions shall be subject to reversal only by a superior judiciary, except in matters of law, which shall be referred to the appointing authority.

Rev. Dr. Smith, chairman of the committee of church unity, reported that he had declined to state the amount of the loan asked for, but said it was not as much as $100,000. He thought the suit against the trust the outcome of the recent legislative inquiry and that State Senator Salomon had been in the city and had said he knew nothing whatever about the suit against the whisky trust. He did not instruct the attorney-general to enter such suit against the trust and gave no instructions on the subject.

Commander Davis soon led her away to the Dolphin, where the remainder of the royal party was made known to the Dolphin's officers and then the visitors sat down to an elaborate luncheon. ARRIVAL AT WASHINGTON. The Royal Party Given a Magnificent Reception.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Before the train bearing Princess Eulalia and party started from Jersey City, a crowd of several hundred people had gathered. As the princess alighted from the carriage she might have passed for a typical young American matron so far as dress and general appearance went. The crowd burst out in a genuine American cheer as she stepped upon the platform of the special car. Wildwood and gave a bright smile and a wave of her hand. As the train rolled out of the station, the visitors gave their attention to its appointments. The luxury of American railroad traveling was unknown to them, and they were not backward in their expressions of pleasure and novelty of the trip. An elaborate course was served on the train, and so the time consumed in the run to Washington passed quickly and pleasantly.

The royal train arrived in Washington at 8:40 tonight. An immense crowd gathered in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania railroad station more than an hour before the train arrived. The attaches of the Spanish legation were on hand as early as 7 o'clock. The party also included Mrs. Curry, wife of the ex-minister to Spain. Soon after their coming four troops of United States cavalry under Colonel Henry rode up and formed in front of the train, and the remainder of the station. Secretary Gresham and Assistant Secretary Quincy came shortly after the arrival of the cavalry.

Secretary Gresham was followed by a handsome barouche, drawn by four magnificent bay horses. It was President Cleveland's carriage, sent for the use of the princess. The president's coachman and footman were in the box. Other officials soon began to arrive. Colonel Wilson, of the army, commissioner of public grounds and buildings, who wore full dress uniform in his capacity as military representative of the president. A double width of carpet was laid along the east side of the platform for the passage of the royal party from the train to the carriage. Then a detachment of police drove back all intruders from the station.

When the train steamed in the princess was the first to alight. Secretary Gresham pressed forward and Commander Davis presented him to the Infanta. The greeting over, Secretary Gresham offered the Infanta a cigar, and she was followed by Colonel Wilson and Mr. Parker and followed by the Infanta's suite, walked down the carpeted platform to the carriage entrance and stood in a line. The princess, who was something nervous, and the princess looked pleased as she saw the throng gathered to receive her. She chatted pally with the Infanta, with Secretary Gresham all the while.

The Infanta, Secretary Gresham, Minister Murnaka and Prince Antonio entered the princess from all the cavalrymen saluted and the procession began to move up Pennsylvania avenue towards the Arlington. Four buglers on horseback and four troops of cavalry formed an escort for the royal party. Six sergeants of cavalry acted as a body guard to the princess, and following her carriage came carriages containing her suite and members of the reviewing party. The princess seemed particularly pleased at the manifestations of popular enthusiasm along the street and bowed graciously.

When the host of the column of troops turned off Pennsylvania avenue and came up to the hotel that the princess alighted, and taking the arm of Secretary Gresham and followed by the House and Spanish minister, entered the Summer annex to the hotel, being greeted by loud shouts by the assembled crowd. A moment later representatives of the government bade the party good night.

Beautiful floral offerings from Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Curry and others were in the rooms. Tomorrow the princess will have an official visit to the President and Mrs. Cleveland. The programme of the day beyond that is not agreed upon.

A ROW IN THE CONGRESS. Helen M. Gouger Causes a Serious Rumpus.

SHE WANTED TO SPEAK. A Verbal Order Said to Have Been Issued Against Her.

War Was Threatened, but Finally Off Was Poured on the Troubled Waters, Helen Had Her Say and the Congress Proceeded.

CHICAGO, May 19.—The ladies congress came near having a serious row today on account of the alleged slight put upon Helen M. Gouger. It seems that the lady's name was omitted from all official programmes. Her friends resented this as an insult but when today it was reported that Mrs. May Wright Sewall, president of the national council of women, had yesterday issued a verbal order to the presidents of the various department meetings, to exclude Mrs. Gouger from participation in speaking engagements because she had not been invited to do so, Mrs. Gouger started on a still higher note and President C. C. Bonny had to step in as a mediator. The speech of the woman in charge of the affair is that Mrs. Sewall, who left this afternoon on a lecture tour while declining to talk to reporters on the subject, had in the past, in speaking in such a manner, Mrs. Gouger, vice-president, wrote a letter to Mrs. Gouger, saying she knew nothing of such an order, and President Bonny poured oil on the troubled waters, and all was serene again.

The attendance at the meetings today and evening exceeded any previous day of the congress. The hall of the department and special congresses. The hall devoted to the National Society of Daughters of the Revolution was crowded with delegates, interspersed with curious ones come to see the fair. The national president, general and wife of the vice-president of the United States.

Hutton was president. She roused the greatest applause by urging the women hearers to go en masse to the World's fair on Sunday.

It was at this evening when members of the international council settled the cause of their differences in the distribution of offices to various candidates. It did not take long after that to elect the following officers: Lady Aberdeen, president; May Wright Sewall, vice-president; Minnie Maria Martin, recording secretary; Mrs. Bertha Alexandra Gripenberg of Finland, treasurer.

At one of the meetings this evening Sarah H. Cooper, of California, talked on "The Rights of Women," and a number of other ladies discussed the subject.
